And because part of that budget is now funding measures to keep other whistleblowers from parting that curtain in the future, this may be the last time such a limited look will be allowed. Nevertheless, what is revealed is staggering. The agencies, in aggregate, have four tasks and five missions. They collect data, analyze it, process it, and act on it. From there, more than , workers analyze, track, and follow where that intelligence leads, in accordance with their mission: The page report published by the Post was analyzed and produced several notable findings: The funding for the CIA not only exceeds that of the NSA by a factor of two, it is much larger than most insiders had estimated. The CIA and the NSA have launched aggressive new attacks into foreign intelligence networks, friends and foes alike, often to sabotage them or limit their capabilities. The agencies, despite their huge budgets, have failed in their mission to know everything about everybody all the time. Steven Aftergood, an expert at the Federation of American Scientists, expressed his delight at the Snowden leak published by the Post, noting its historic importance: It was a titanic struggle just to get the top-line budget number disclosed, and that has only been done consistently since But a real grasp of the structure and operations of the intelligence bureaucracy has been totally beyond public reach [until now]. This kind of material, even on a historical basis, has simply not been available. There was one other question that the report answered, at least in part: Where does all the money go? The â€ resources â€ funded secret prisons, a controversial interrogation program, the deployment of lethal drones and a huge expansion of its counterterrorism center. Part of the money is spent on blackmail and various paramilitary black operations: The value of any piece of information is only known when you can connect it with something else that arrives at a future point in time. The brief glimpse behind the black spy curtain allowed by Snowden and the Post, while dated and limited, is nevertheless useful to Americans who have had their suspicions about just how invasive and powerful the surveillance state is in America. They have just had their worst suspicions confirmed. 2: Social Media Censorship Is Vastly More Dangerous Than The Censored Material – Caitlin Johnstone

Vastly more than that by Guy Kettelhack, , Hazelden edition, in English.

Russia hacked our election. What should we do about it? Greatly inflate the military budget, sanction US rivals, and censor dissenting opinions. I know objecting to internet censorship makes me a right-wing Nazi-kissing literal Hitler in the eyes of many in this bizarre funhouse mirror world of online political discourse, but I insist that censorship by powerful corporations is one of the greatest obstacles we face in our fight to survive and thrive as a species in a world that is increasingly imperiled and dominated. It has become painfully obvious that political solutions to the problems we face are locked shut to us. Democracy does not exist in America in any meaningful way, and those of us who live outside of America are all subject to the whims of the power establishment which has loosely centralized itself there. After the war it subordinated itself U. But beyond that the door of actual political democracy is bolted shut. This is not yet the case with democratized information sharing. The operational word being yet. But the machine had noticed this hole in its armor as well, and planned accordingly. Facebook has caused a drastic drop in the visibility of unauthorized articles , and I myself have been temporarily suspended for political speech by both Facebook and Twitter. He talks about his experience here in the first part of our conversation. Hours after Medium announced it had suspended the accounts of right-wing pundits Mike Cernovich, Jack Posobiec and Laura Loomer, Mother Jones Senior Reporter Shane Bauer was on Twitter tagging Medium and telling them that they needed to censor antiwar leftists like myself as well for expressing skepticism of the establishment Syria narrative. The empire and its loyalists will never be content with merely silencing right-wing voices, which is why when Infowars starts receiving strikes from Youtube for merely expressing skepticism, we should all get worried. But the things that he says are infinitely less dangerous than powerful media corporations censoring controversial political speech. And when I say censorship, I mean censorship. America has a corporatist system of government, with no meaningful separation between government power and corporate power , so corporate media is government media, and corporate censorship is government censorship. The media manipulators know all about manufacturing the consent of the governed. People like Alex Jones. Go to Gab, where you can talk about it as much as you like to eleven people with cartoon frog user pics. This is far, far more dangerous than anything Alex Jones has ever said, because it removes the only obstacle standing in the way of the omnicidal, ecocidal plutocracy which is threatening our very existence with the looming probability of extinction via nuclear holocaust or climate chaos. Individuals with access to unauthorized ideas and information are that obstacle, and the plutocrats are neutering us with censorship. Refuse to consent to this. Leave all nonviolent political speech alone and let us sort it out, Big Brother. Ordinary people are far more sane and intelligent than you are. A Field Guide for Utopia Preppers.
