Views From A German Spion by Bret Harte [?] Outside of my window, two narrow perpendicular mirrors, parallel with the casement, project into the street, yet with a certain unobtrusiveness of angle that enables them to reflect the people who pass, without any reciprocal disclosure of their own.

Plot[edit] Beautiful Russian spy Sonja Baranikowa Gerda Maurus seduces Colonel Jellusic Fritz Rasp into betraying his country for her employer, Haghi Rudolf Klein-Rogge , a seemingly respectable bank director who is actually the criminal mastermind of a powerful espionage organization. Jason Craighall Sherry , head of the Secret Service, gives the task of bringing the mysterious Haghi down to a handsome young agent known only as Number Willy Fritsch who believes his identity is a secret. Haghi does not anticipate that the couple will fall in love. Unwilling to betray , Sonja quietly slips away after they spend the afternoon and evening together. He trails her to Colonel Jellusic, whom he mistakes for her lover she is actually paying him off. Haghi is after a crucial, secret Japanese treaty. He blackmails Lady Leslane Hertha von Walther , an opium addict, into betraying what her husband knows of the negotiations. When seeks out Sonya, he finds her apartment stripped bare; Masimoto finds him drowning his sorrows in a bar and informs him that he would have arrested the woman as a spy. Masimoto gives three couriers a sealed packet each to deliver to Tokyo; he informs them that a copy of the treaty is inside one of them. Haghi obtains all three packages and finds only newspapers but he has one more card up his sleeve. Masimoto pities Kitty Lien Deyers , a young woman he finds huddling in a doorway during a rainstorm and takes her in. When he prepares to leave for Japan with the treaty, she begs him to spend a few hours with her. He gives in, attracted by her beauty but when he wakes up later, she is gone with the treaty; disgraced, he commits ritual suicide. When confronted by his superiors, Jellusic shoots himself to avoid a scandal. On the train trip back, is nearly killed in a trap set by Haghi. While he is sleeping, his car is detached and left in a tunnel. He awakens just before another train smashes into it. Haghi captures Sonya and Franz and sends an ultimatum, clear the building within 15 minutes or Sonya will die. After agonizing, continues searching, even after poison gas is released. Later, a clerk complains to and Jason that the serial numbers he was given to trace do not match the bank notes. The two realize that must be Haghi. When Haghi goes on stage to perform his clown act, he sees that he is surrounded by agents and shoots himself in the head. The audience, believing it is all just part of his act, applauds.
