A part of Mount Marty College's (MMC) new Benedictine Leadership Institute (BLI) is to have students learn about themselves. One way to accomplish this is to give the student's perspective on their place in the world.

With the inspiration that the Sisters provide, the faculty and staff of Mount Marty College create a sense of wonder for those who study and work here. As a community, we seek to answer questions and better understand those things that perplex us. We strive to make our corner of the world better each and every day, to serve God, and to love those around us. Based in Yankton, a historic city of 15, people, Mount Marty believes that the Benedictine values of community, hospitality, lifelong learning, awareness of God, and service are fundamental to the daily lives of students, faculty, and staff. We encourage you to explore your passions to find your purpose. Flourish in a supportive community of peers, professors, Sisters of the Monastery, and employees who work continually to make the college better for each student. Mount Marty College, an academic community in the Catholic Benedictine liberal arts tradition, prepares students for a contemporary world of work, service to the human community, and personal growth. Mount Marty College is committed to becoming a preeminent academic institution in the region, combining the liberal arts and career-oriented education. Mount Marty students are a caring, curious bunch. Not only do we work together to help people, but we also want to be the ones who dive head-first into solving problems, experimenting with new ideas, and thinking beyond the walls of Corbey or Whitby Hall. Our academic advisors will help you decide how to pick a degree. A Mount Marty education will push you to the limit in a good way. Mount Marty teaches you to think beyond the right answer so that you find fresh ways to approach problems. Your classmates will tell you how satisfying it is to start a discussion group and examine new perspectives on health care or criminal justice. You deserve a school that provides more than just a degree. You deserve a chance to explore your passions, a career that makes a difference, and a campus that feels like home. Mount Marty is an affordable college in South Dakota. You may be surprised to find that attending a private Catholic college can be just as affordable as attending a public university. The value of a private college is more than just what it costs to attend that college. If you are interested in a career that allows you to lead, serve others, and make an impact in your future, you will find our programs, which include nursing, teacher education, recreation management, criminal justice, and business administration, a perfect fit. A typical financial aid package includes scholarships, grants, loans, and work-study. Scholarships are awarded based on your academic performance or extracurricular activities. Private scholarships are available through civic and fraternal organizations, and several are awarded through Mount Marty. Moreover, they need repayment. We are ever-thankful to alumni and friends who make such gifts possible. Loans provide funding that you must repay. The repayment of most federal loans can be deferred, at least on a half-time basis, while you attend college. There are countless ways for you to become a part of this community. Our staff and faculty believe that our four core values help to shape each student who walks our campus. We all strive to provide opportunities for personal growth, encouraging you to develop better self-understanding, intellectual ability, and appreciation of the places where you live now and those where you will live in the future. Matt Hayes, a successful alumnus, describes how his professors and community helped propel him into his current career as an orthopedic radiologist at Sanford Health in Sioux Falls, South Dakota.
