Double bed and two sofas in the room. Access to personal bathroom with bath and very large fully equipped kitchen diner. On two main bus routes to close by city centre, Birmingham uni and local hospitals. Ideal base if you are visiting for tourism, study or to work in the city. Clean, friendly, recently renovated house. Edgbaston reservoir and Harbourne walkway close by. Shops in the local area. The recently renovated house provides a high level of accommodation. Very large bedroom with two sofas. With all the benefits of a house, but with private space. Great value for money. Bath and Bedroom were very clean and the kitchen was huge. The bed was big and comfortable and we could reach the city centre easily by bus because the bus stops were near by. We were given a book with information about the house and the city, with information about how to get to several places in Birmingham as well as how to get to the next grocery store. A great place to stay! I will consider re book again ElfatihT House is very clean and warm room was massive and the bathroom is to a very high standard. Kitchen is very large and has everything you need as I was literally using the place to sleep I didnt need the use of kitchen. I thoroughly recommend to stay here PatrickT Ally was a really great host, very helpful and really made you feel at home. The house was a good distance from the city centre and in a lovely area, always felt safe and secure. Great price as well! Would recommend to anyone coming to Birmingham: This is an automated posting. Ally described exactly how to get to the heart of Birmingham, where the course was, and the journey was really cheap and easy I am a senior, so on a tight budget. He also described where the local shops were, so that I could get a really good range of supplies for packed lunches and supper, which saved me a fortune. Even though the room was described as spacious, it was even more spacious than I expected, as was the whole house. Ally had thought of absolutely everything that I could possibly need, even including cooking utensils of every kind, and even cookery books! The house itself was very quiet, and I had all the privacy I needed. People there were very friendly and welcoming, being interested in me as a person. Being a silver surfer, and therefore a very light sleeper, I live in the country, so my only comment would be that if you are any of the same, and used to quiet, I would suggest some earplugs, as the house is on a busy road that leads to a hospital, so we did get a few ambulances whizzing by all night. The bed was much more comfortable than I was expecting from previous Airbnb experiences though, so I soon got back to sleep. Another really good factor for me was that I could access the digs from the motorway without having to deal with any city traffic jams when I arrived in Birmingham and also when I left to go home again during the rush hour - this was a huge bonus to me, as sitting in traffic to me is a total waste of my valuable life. I would certainly make contact to get the same again if I have to stay in Birmingham in the future. Thank you so much, Ally. It was a super experience! I am most grateful for your help, and I wish you the success you richly deserve in this new venture.

The maximum the apartment can sleep in total is 8. For any more than 4 people, i. Any questions, please just ask. I aim to reply within 60 seconds Really nice cocktails too. Think they have the most in the country or something like that. For food, again a 2-minute walk away is an Italian called Pasta di Piazza. Small place but very good food, and very reasonable too. As you tell them what you want, they go into a monologue about the ingredients going into your dish, how the chef prepares and cooks it, etc. They do this for every person and never write anything down. When the food came it was all perfect, including sides. Not sure if they carry a secret recorder in their pocket or what! Anyway, the food is amazing and worth the price. About a 7-minute walk is another upmarket restaurant called Opus. If you wanna go really fancy, there are 2 Michelin star restaurant in the City Centre, which is a minute walk - Purnells and Adams. A bit further out so 5 -1 0 minutes by taxi there are another 2 Michelin star restaurants - Simpsons and Carters of Moseley. So you can just pop in to the bar if you want to see Birmingham from up above. Well advertised, easy to communicate with and a stress free stay. The flat itself was spacious and the Jacuzzi bathtub was a bonus. However would have liked the flat to be cleaned as the carpet was quite dirty and needed hoovering and the shower was blocked. However bed was uncomfortable so we slept on the sofa the second night and there was damp in the room. Overall the place was good and the hot tub was the highlight AmaaniT The kitchen is perfect with all of the bits you could need to cook a lovely dinner like we did. The jacuzzi bath is also great to unwind! Max was a super host, very accommodating when I was late for the first time and early for the second! Thanks and we would love to stay again some time if we are in Birmingham. Me and my wife fell in love with the place immediately and I have already said I will book next time I am in brummie. The actual place looks and feels like it belongs to a celebrity. I stayed with a colleague while visiting the NEC for work. Easy to walk to lovely restaurants. Also Supermarket walking distance.

The West Bromwich Town Improvement Commissioners () purchased prime land, previously part of the local heath from the Izon family for the erection of a number of public buildings including the Town Hall.

The town is famous for its football club, West Bromwich Albion. The club was founded in and in it became one of the twelve founder members of the Football League. It won the league championship in and has won the FA Cup five times, most recently in Albion were based in and around the centre of West Bromwich during their formative years, but moved further out of the town in when they switched to their current ground, The Hawthorns. The Hawthorns is the highest football ground above sea level in the country. Legge was unusual as an aristocrat of this period by being a Methodist and attending the Wednesbury Methodist meetings, where fellow Methodists "many of them colliers and drovers" knew him as "Brother Earl". It was built between and in brick and stone to an Italian Gothic design, and its interior reflects the Victorian interest in Gothic and Medieval architecture. Its Grand Organ, built in , is considered to be of historic importance for its musical and technical qualities. Built by the de Marnham family in the late 13th century as the centre of their agricultural estate in West Bromwich only the Great Hall survives of the original complex of living quarters, agricultural barns, sheds and ponds. Successive occupants modernised and extended the Manor House until it was described in as "a large pile of irregular half-timbered buildings, black and white, and surrounded with numerous out-houses and lofty walls. The Oak House is an historic building in the Greets Green area. Its exact date of origin is uncertain, but in it was owned by the Turtons. John Wesley preached there twice in the late s. Reuben Farley gave it to the town as a museum, with the formal opening on 25 July By , the venue was attracting nearly , visitors a year and was bringing leading national and international artists to the town. Since the early s the tenants of homes and businesses have slowly moved out of the site to make way for the development. The police station relocated to a brand new building the other site of the ring road. Major works started on the site during October and the development should be complete by late Spring Religion[ edit ] West Bromwich is a culturally diverse area with many places of worship for several different religions. West Bromwich has four mosques. With two on Dartmouth street, one serving the Bangladeshi sunni community and the other, the Pakistani sunni community. The reason for the separate mosques is due to historic differences in opinions between imams of the berelvi community Pakistani and other sunni denominations. The largest mosque in West Bromwich is the Madinatul Uloom Al-Islamiyah Madrasa on Moor street which accommodates all muslim Sunni denominations and follows the Deobandi school of thought. The fourth mosque is a relatively new mosque which was opened in and follows the Bangladeshi fultoli teachings. The Bangladeshi mosque on Dartmouth street the Jami Masjid and Islamic Centre is currently fundraising to rebuild a purpose built mosque to accommodate more worshippers. Currently, they have obtained the land they require for this rebuild but are lacking crucial funding required for the ambitious multi-million pound rebuild. Madinatul Uloom Al-Islamiyah, located at Moor street is based at an abandoned church and was converted into a functioning mosque in The mosque also functions as a madrasa , meaning that it offers taught classes and hosts Islamic events including an annual jalsa Islamic gathering. It currently and since offers Islamic evening classes to hundreds of children and has plans in the future to offer higher education to adults who desire to pursue Islamic studies at a higher level. The premises consists of two large prayer halls and an assortment of classrooms. This mosque is regularly attended by mostly people of Bangladeshi, Pakistani and Arab ethnicity in order of proportions of worshippers from each ethnicity - but what sets this mosque apart from others in West Bromwich, is that it is used regularly by people of many ethnicities, unlike other mosques in West Bromwich which are primarily used by people of one ethnicity. There are also a large[ vague ] number of Sikhs in the area. There are many Gurudwaras. Sikhs have settled in the area since , when the first influx of immigrants came. Hindus have had a formal place of worship in West Bromwich since the opening of the Shree Krishna Mandir [21] in , in a converted church once called Ebenezer Congregational Chapel, which had closed in It was believed to have been connected to religious violence in India that was spreading into communities in Britain. The junction, which is where The Expressway meets All saints way, currently carries over 60, vehicles a day, and is close to Junction 1 of the M5 The project involves the creation of a dual carriageway underpass, beneath an improved roundabout. This work began in June and should hopefully be completed in Autumn West Bromwich has its own bus station in the town centre, with connections to Birmingham and other major towns in the West Midlands region. The trackbed of that line is now served by the Midland Metro light rail tram system giving West Bromwich 7 tram stops: There was previously a Newton Road railway station on Newton Road which was located a mile away from the town centre. This station closed in although it moved two times between and , only the line remains in use for the services from Walsall to Birmingham, Wolverhampton and Liverpool Lime Street. This later formed part of the A41 road which links London with Merseyside , taking in the midlands, Shropshire , Warwickshire, Oxfordshire , Buckinghamshire and Hertfordshire on the way. The original A41 road through the centre of West Bromwich was downgraded to an unclassified route. Around this time, West Bromwich Ringway was opened, circulating the main shopping areas. Further revolution came to the local road network in with the completion of the Black Country Spine Road which stretches from Carters Green to Bilston via Wednesbury , forming another new section of the A West Bromwich has a large bus station managed by Transport for West Midlands previously Centro and served by a large number of routes, both locally to places such as Oldbury , Smethwick and Stone Cross as well as regional bus routes to places such as Birmingham , Wolverhampton and Walsall. Stands are lettered a through to z. The college is capable of enrolling over 5, students each year across many curriculum areas. Facilities in the Central Campus include a Boeing fuselage used for training air cabin crew and a dental surgery used to train dental nurses. Central Campus also offers a wide variety of apprenticeships and a small number of Higher Education programmes. The town is served by five secondary schools: The town has 21 primary schools in total. Some of which are Lodge Primary School , St. George Salter Academy serves the west of the town near the border with Tipton. Q3 Academy serves the north-eastern part of the town around Great Barr. Due to constant closure rumours, less and less pupils began enrolling to attend the school and it was closed in July The site has since been redeveloped for housing. All traces of the original structures are long gone; the oldest stand is the Halfords Lane Stand that was built in and the other three stands were built between and West Brom were among the 12 founder members of the Football League in , along with their two fiercest local rivals, Aston Villa and Wolverhampton Wanderers. They enjoyed further success in the late s and early s, when they finished in the top five league positions three times in four seasons as well as reaching a UEFA Cup quarter-final.
