During her more than two decades with Booz Allen, Messer has developed numerous solutions and strategies for clients in the areas of information technology, enterprise systems, Agile, DevOps, open source, secure cloud computing, big data and business intelligence, program management, security systems, digital learning, organizational change, and talent management. Prior to joining Booz Allen in , Messer was a U. Army officer, managed two major commercial businesses, and launched a startup software development company. Messer earned a B. Military Academy at West Point. She also holds an M. She began her career working as an account executive for a commercial organization in Australia. Given the magnitude of the digital explosion combined with my military background and sense of national security, I pivoted into cyber security because it has become more pressing over the last several years. In my opinion, this is the year of cyber. I was always encouraged to strive to be my best, to have a voice and to lead. Were there challenges when I was in the military? Our greatest challenge is getting more women, and getting young women, in STEM fields. Sponsorship and advocacy are important roles that men can and should play. Current Focus Company Snapshot: Booz Allen Hamilton Booz Allen has served business, government, and military leaders for over years solving their most complex problems through a combination of five service offerings: With global headquarters in McLean, Virginia, Booz Allen employs nearly 25, people worldwide including just under 80 partners. Getting the Word Out: Sometimes called a moonshot, this panel will share their ambitious, exploratory and ground-breaking thoughts. Turning to cybersecurity, Rozanski weighed in on the potential threat posted by technology parts that originate in China and other nations, in light of the clash between the White House and some members of Congress over the future of the Chinese telecom company ZTE Corp. Booz Allen is currently revamping its marketing tech stack, redefining employee engagement and changing its campaign planning among many other initiatives , reported Sirius Decisions in June We needed to map it out before we could think about discussing what we needed We defined specific goals to build out the account-based marketing experience. We had to look across the board at the people, processes, technology, security and culture dimensions to see what we needed to build internally and where we could use partners With our focus on employee engagement and marketing, we built a data warehouse and connected various marketing pieces. Eventually, it will connect Microsoft Dynamics data and parts of finance to make us all smarter and drive marketing toward revenue generation. We transitioned to Workday about 15 months ago, and about year ago we introduced Dynamic Signal as an employee communications tool. They show that the fundamentals of our business are strong, the continuing strategic transformation of our firm successful. And we are now positioned in the market precisely where client demand is greatest and growing at the intersection of technology and mission. All credit for these achievements goes to the people of Booz Allen In addition, the recent two-year budget deal and omnibus appropriations bill significantly increased discretionary funding. With greater budget certainty, our clients are more inclined to undertake the Visionary work associated with upgrading and modernizing their own capabilities. And Booz Allen will be there to support them every step of the way fusing consulting and mission knowledge with innovative technologies. This include, data science and machine intelligence and per price scale agile developments, resilience, positioning navigation and timing, adaptive cyber defense and immersive technologies. With government funding now beginning to flow, we are seeing lots of opportunity across our contract and client base from defense to intelligence, to civil agencies"

Beefing up the Cyber Transformation Team: Drive and execute tasks and activities, including conducting Cyber maturity assessments, identifying capability gaps based on established frameworks, such as NIST, and developing roadmaps and strategies to achieve a Cyber program that delivers enduring security readiness, either pre- or post-incidents. Facilitate and lead client and team meetings, interviews, and workshops, including visioning and Cyber program design sessions. Guide executive-level clients through organizational design, operating model, and technology decisions required to build an enterprise Cyber capability, including people, process, technology, and data and provide hands-on implementation assistance, coaching, and advising the client on new ways of doing business. Develop prioritization strategies, project plans, and manage task execution across a portfolio of projects, including executive progress reporting. Booz founded the Business Research Service. Since then, Booz Allen has had a hand in several notable private and public engagements throughout its years, such as advising on the breakup of Bell System and helping organize the National Football League in the s. Booz died in , the company continued to expand. In , it received its first international contract, helping reorganize land-ownership records for the newly established Philippine government. In , Sam Johnson, great grandson of the S. The ACLU and PI filed a memo at the end of their investigation which called into question the ethics and legality of a government contractor in this case Booz Allen acting as auditors of a government program, when that contractor is heavily involved with those same agencies on other contracts. The basic statement was that a conflict of interest may exist. Beyond that, the implication was also made that Booz Allen may be complicit in a program electronic surveillance of SWIFT that may be deemed illegal by the European Commission. A Government Accountability Office GAO report on the contract characterized it as not well-planned and lacking any measure for assuring valuable work to be completed. According to the article, A review of memos, e-mail and other contracting documents obtained by The Washington Post show that in a rush to meet congressional mandates to establish the information analysis and infrastructure protection offices, agency officials routinely waived rules designed to protect taxpayer money. As the project progressed, the department became so dependent on Booz Allen that it lost the flexibility for a time to seek out other contractors or hire federal employees who might do the job for less. But Duke said those matters have been resolved. She defended a decision to issue a second no-bid contract in as necessary to keep an essential intelligence operation running until a competition could be held. This information and a complete dump of the database were placed in a file shared on The Pirate Bay. The remainder of the addresses came from educational institutions and defense contractors. According to a statement by the group, "We infiltrated a server on their network that basically had no security measures in place. Anonymous also accused Booz Allen of participating in intelligence-gathering and surveillance programs of the U. The alleged leaks are said to rank among the most significant breaches in the history of the NSA [45] and led to considerable concern worldwide. Market analysts considered the incident "embarrassing" but unlikely to cause enduring commercial damage. It planned to later add operations to Bahrain, Saudi Arabia, and Turkey, during a time when those countries, as stated by Jill R. Aitoro of the Washington Business Journal, were "recover[ing] from the turmoil associated with the Arab Spring ". According to David E. Data mining, Web surveillance, all sorts of digital intelligence collection. Additionally, it also entered an agreement with the Saudi government that involves the protection and cyber-security of government ministries, [57] with experts arguing that these defensive maneuvers could easily be used to target dissidents.
