More options William Ramsay to D. Harris Holmes House Dec. Ramsay I deem it my duty to remark that in my opinion the report of Dr. Drayton is groundless and that Capt. Ramsay has by using the tallow as he states the government considerable and made for the service good use of that which would otherwise have been wasted. I am satisfied that if any thing wrong has been committed it has been done innocently. Drayton has certainly given himself a great deal of extra trouble to correct what he thought an abuse which could be corrected by his simply complaining to his immediate superior Officer. It is my candid conviction that his report is actuated by personal hatred and vindictiveness alone. I therefore hope it will not be entertained. Respt [Respectfully] signed J. I would respectfully make the following remarks upon the communication of Dr. Drayton with reference to certain transactions which are being perpetrated in the Commissary Department here. Divesting the report of Dr. Drayton of all its contemptible and malicious personalities it contains three distinct insinuations. As to the first insinuation I would state that it has been customary to take from the beef that portion of the tallow which would have been otherwise wasted, try [tie? Robertson took charge of the works upon James Island I called his attention to about pounds of tallow which had accumulated by saving it from the beef; he remarked that as the rats were destroying it he thought it best to use some for candles for the office and dispose of the remainder and appropriate the money to the purchase of tobacco for the negroes; under this suggestion of Col. This fact was reported to Col. In accordance with this suggestion I paid each axeman who was engaged in felling the timber in front of the new line one dollar for each Sunday he was so engaged: Thus the tallow which would have been wasted or destroyed was saved and made use to the Government. The second insinuation that all the marrow has been extracted from the bones is false, in one of two instances a little marrow has been taken out from exposed portions of the bone by some of the young men and used for making hair grease. With reference to the strange propensity of the salt I refer you to the enclosed report of the Mr. White the Commissary at this post. Drayton states in his communication that he wished tallow for hospital purposes and could not get it. I would remark that Dr. Drayton has never applied to me or the Commissary for tallow, nor has he even complained to me or the Commissary that he beef was stripped too close of tallow, or that the tallow taken from it was necessary for the negroes. Taking their facts into consideration in connection with the contemptible littleness of the tone of Dr. Very respectfully, your obedt servt [obedient servant] signed Wm. Harris Chief Engineer Dept. Life[ edit ] Ramsay was born in Glasgow, Scotland , the youngest son of a third-generation lawyer, Thomas Ramsay and his wife Jane Mitchell daughter of William Mitchell. His father died when he was six years old, and the family moved from the city to the family home in the country district near Alloa. The help of his older brother and maternal uncle, Andrew Mitchell, made it possible for him to have a superior education. He studied at the University of Aberdeen , where he achieved high distinction and later became Professor of Humanity. He won a scholarship to St. In Ramsay received an Oxford studentship for travel and research in Greece. At Smyrna, he met Sir C. Wilson, then British consul-general in Anatolia, who advised him on inland areas suitable for exploration. Ramsay and Wilson made two long journeys during He was known for his expertise in the historic geography and topography of Asia Minor and of its political, social, cultural, and religious history. He was Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford , in From to Ramsay held the newly created Lincoln Professor of Classical Archaeology and Art at Oxford and became a fellow of Lincoln College honorary fellow He remained affiliated with Aberdeen until his retirement in From onwards he received the honorary degrees of D. St Andrews and Glasgow, and D. In , Ramsay was knighted for his scholarly achievements on the th anniversary of the founding of the University of Aberdeen. He was elected a member of learned societies in Europe and America and was awarded medals by the Royal Geographical Society and the University of Pennsylvania. He was a grandson of entrepreneur William Mitchell â€” Other relatives include Mary Ramsay and Agnis Margaret Ramsay who were responsible for contributing several photographs and illustrations in his work on The Letters to the Seven Churches. Contribution to biblical studies[ edit ] William Ramsay was known for his careful attention to New Testament events, particularly the Book of Acts and Pauline Epistles. When he first went to Asia Minor, many of the cities mentioned in Acts had no known location and almost nothing was known of their detailed history or politics. The Acts of the Apostles was the only record and Ramsay, skeptical, fully expected his own research to prove the author of Acts hopelessly inaccurate since no man could possibly know the details of Asia Minor more than a hundred years after the eventâ€”this is, when Acts was then supposed to have been written. He therefore set out to put the writer of Acts on trial. He devoted his life to unearthing the ancient cities and documents of Asia Minor. After a lifetime of study, however, he concluded: Pictures of the Apostolic Church:
