Wind Spring Partially cloudy with a light breeze. Expect lots of pollen! Storm Looks like a storm is approaching. Thunder and lightning is expected. Snow Expect a few inches of snow tomorrow. Make sure you bundle up, folks! Wedding Day This image will appear instead of the weather icon on your wedding day Notes It always rains on stormy days. Fish that require rain can be caught on stormy days, and the Old Mariner will appear on stormy days. The Rain Totem will change the weather for the following day to rain unless the following day is a festival or the 1st day of a season. Spring of year 1 can also not be changed by a Rain Totem. During thunderstorms there is a possibility that lightning strikes can destroy crops and trees , and temporarily change Fruit Trees into coal trees. Lightning will not strike Chests placed outside [1]. If Lightning Rods are placed anywhere on the farm [2] they have a good chance to intercept lightning strikes, as long as they are not already processing a strike into a Battery Pack. Winter Seeds need to be watered even if it is snowing. Snow transparency can be changed in the Options Menu. Sliding the bar to the left will increase snow transparency i. The weather will always be "clear and sunny" for Festivals. It will never rain in Winter unless you use a Rain Totem. If there is a Festival on your wedding day, the heart icon will not display. The TV will predict stormy weather on Summer 25th, but not the 26th. If you do not check the TV forecast on the 25th, it may not be stormy. Weather data for more information. On a windy day in the Fall the blowing leaves are usually a reddish color, except in the Secret Woods , where they will be green.

Windy weather forecast, updated four times a day and shows the weather summary plus detailed sun, rain, snow, wind and temperature. The weather forecast extends out to 10 days showing information for morning, afternoon and overnight.

UK forecast for the next 5 days Headline: Rain in the far northwest. Dry but largely cloudy elsewhere. Windy with rain across Northern Ireland and western Scotland, turning heavier later. Largely dry but generally cloudy elsewhere, with hill fog in places. There will be some sunny spells, especially across northern England, north Wales and eastern Scotland. Heavy rain across northwestern areas will ease overnight. Largely dry but cloudy elsewhere with hill fog developing. Mild for most, but clearer and colder in the far north and northwest. Mainly dry but largely cloudy, with patchy drizzle in places. The best of any sunshine will be across the far north and northwest, with only limited brightness elsewhere. Outlook for Saturday to Monday: It will turn sunnier through the weekend, before thicker cloud brings an increasing shower risk by Monday. Turning colder through the period, accentuated by strengthening winds. For much of next week it looks mostly cloudy with the best of the brighter spells in the west. Showers are possible, mainly in the east, and these could turn wintry over hills. It will be cold, especially in the south, with this accentuated by the brisk wind. Night frosts are likely and could become widespread at times. Towards the end of the week there is a chance of outbreaks of rain and hill snow affecting many areas at times, particularly in the south. Similar conditions will probably continue into the following weekend and the last week of November. There is also an increasing chance of snow falling to lower levels towards the end of November, mainly in the north and east. This period is likely to begin with a continuation of cold conditions. The best of any sunshine is likely in the west with generally cloudier skies in the east. There is a continued chance of showers for all areas with snow over the hills, mainly in the east and north. More organised areas of rain and hill snow could affect many areas at times, and there is a low risk of snow to low levels. Confidence is currently low towards the middle of December. However, there is an increased chance of less cold conditions arriving as weather systems moving in from the Atlantic.
