John Dyer was born in Rhode Island, home of the Baptist church and seems to have drove into the river and was baptized into that church. James Dyer born 23 April He married Cynthia Adams. He died in Grantham, Sullivan, NH. Ruth Dyer probably born in Sturbridge, MA. She married Martin Spencer. The issue of proving their lines is difficult because of this. John was probably born in Rhode Island, as was his father. When it became clear that the early assumption that John Dyer of Rhode Island was our ancestor rather than the same named John who married Anna Payson, a search was on as to whom he married. Sometime after the birth of their eldest son, James, the family moved to Windham, Connecticut or Massachusetts. Moses, their third child, was born in Woodstock, Massachusetts, as was possibly another child. James, Thomas, Moses, from Woodstock. John enlisted on 1 May , less then a month after the Battle at Concord and Lexington started the Revolutionary War. The Dyers knew what was going on in Boston and other rebellious areas of Massachusetts, probably visiting the local tavern for news of impending events that lead to the war. He serviced for three months and 8 days from his enlistment date but returned two months later on 7 Oct It is likely he came home for the harvest and then returned when the harvest was safely in the barn. John then returned to serve as a private from May to August. He may have, again returned home for the harvest. No more records have been found for John Dyer. He may have felt he had done his duty or he have begun to feel his age. During times of war, people tend to gravitate back to their faith. Hopefully this was true for John. The Revolutionary War was a hard war on its warriors. The colonial army was poorly paid and had little weaponry beyond what the soldiers supplied themselves. John was in his fifties and although that is not an old man, he was middle age and was probably much more affected by the cold and harsh conditions then a younger man. He certainly realized that Death was a close companion and that he could very well be standing before his Maker soon. His heritage was one of steadfast ancestors who took their faith very seriously and stood firm in the face of adversity. He very well may have taken comfort in his own steadfast faith. John Dyer survived the war but only by about a year and a half. He must have been pleased that God spared his soldier sons. In part they read: Joseph Dorr Judge of Probate Interestingly, he also owned money to a Dr. Case , Administrator of estate of John Dyer
