Child learns through games and fun. He or she unconsciously chooses those toys that meet his or her current needs. Through games child learns and develops, so it does matter what kind of toy we give to our child. Since child gradually goes through different development phases from the birth and through the childhood, his or her need for different types of toys changes with time. Therefore, you should provide your child with those toys that are adjusted to the age and needs, not those that parents like. Parents and relatives often make mistakes when choosing toys, because they want to express their love towards child by purchasing the most expensive and the most complicated toy. The toy is considered to be good if it challenges child to think, play with it, experiment, feel, ask himself or herself questions and seek for answers. The toy should encourage development of psychic, motor, mental, social and emotional skills. A good toy should be nice, amusing, safe and high-quality and it should help child to learn and meet the world around him or her. Did you know that blocks, balls and stacking cups are considered to be the best existing toys? As child gets older, more skilled and experienced, criteria that indicate a toy as a safe one are milder. Advantages of wooden toys Traditionally wood is considered to be an ideal material for making toys. Wooden toys were used years BC in ancient Egypt, and have remained until today. Nowadays, when market is full with industrial plastic toys from mass production, which are often of suspicious quality and almost always short-lived, wooden toys are completely their opposites. They contain spirit of tradition and longevity and they are often handmade and unique. Young children put every toy in their mouth. Wooden toys are generally simpler than plastic ones and they enable children to use their imagination while playing with them. Wooden toys are more durable than plastic toys. Plastic toys get broken easily while wooden toys can stand much more punches and falls. Wooden toys are safe, without any health risk and more suitable than any other material. Therefore, educational toys for preschool children and young school kids, such as building blocks, puzzles and similar, are made of wood. These toys are durable and they will last for many years without any damage. Wooden toys can often be made from scrap or from recycled wood, thus they become not only cheaper but also environmentally friendly. Craftsmanspace kids toy plans All toys whose plans we offer here are made of wood, without or with minimum of metal parts. By making these wooden toys you will create a unique toy for your kid. They have simple design, smooth lines; children can easily hold them. We have no doubts that your standards regarding toys you give to your children are very high. If you make toys by yourself, only then you can be sure that you have given to your child a safe, firm and high-quality wooden toy that does not contain anything harmful and dangerous. When choosing wood for kids toys it is very important to use those types of wood that are not harmful and that not contain toxic or allergenic substances. We recommend you to use hardwood that does not have large pores that could trap dirt and bacteria. Please always use wood that comes from the sustainable forests or from plantations. Suitable types of wood are maple, alder, birch, sycamore, poplar, cherry and similar. Avoid exotic woods, because they can cause allergic reactions. From the same reason, you should also avoid walnut. Whenever you can, use the wood of different colors rather than using dyes. Making wooden toys is easy and pleasurable.
