Janine has concentrated on dog biscuits recipes in this book. And there is a nice variety. The company was founded by Jessica Disbrow Talley and her husband, so that they could make preservative free dog treats. But this dog treat cookbook goes beyond that! The recipes are made from organic ingredients, and they are wheat-free, corn-free and soy-free. That makes them perfect for dogs with food allergies! K-9 Nation Biscuit Book: Baking for Your Best Friend Klecko, the author, is not only a master baker who has worked in some of the finest restaurants. It comes with recipes, 5 dog cookie cutters, and little treat bags and labels that you can use for your dog treats. The recipes are written by Janine Adams, the award winning pet writer and columnist for Dog World Magazine. And this dog treat cookbook has included dozens and dozens of tasty recipes for dog treats and biscuits. Some people expect every dog cookbook to have hypoallergenic recipes, but not every cookbook does. This one includes wheat flour in its recipes. If your dog is allergic to it, you can substitute barley or spelt flours. Homemade dog biscuits for your dog! Pet parents who choose to bake their own homemade dog biscuits for their dogs, do so for a number of reasons: Save money - You can definitely save money by baking your own dog biscuits. Whether you bake for your own dog or use the treats as gifts, you will save money! Homemade dog biscuits cost a fraction of what you would pay for comparable quality dog biscuits at the store. In fact, you might save enough to pay for a cookbook! the first time you bake dog biscuits! Control the ingredients - When you bake your own dog biscuits, you have absolute control over what goes into them! You can use only healthy ingredients, and you can choose ingredients that will give you healthy dog biscuits! Fun - Perhaps the best reason to bake for your dog, is that it really is lots of fun!
