Your Opinion Matters At Progressive, we want to know what you think. While we're pleased with our track record and the awards we've received, we're more interested in hearing what you think.

By Singyin Lee in Blogging. Updated on July 19, We all have opinions. Some of us have no inhibitions sharing them with total strangers on the internet or via social media. In some circumstances, two very different opinions collide and all hell breaks loose. And this happens on a daily, sometimes hourly basis. Having opinions is healthy. It indicates a progressive nature — one which signifies that we are improving to be better, better educated, more knowledgeable people. But because everyone has opinions, everyone thinks they are deserving of being heard, applauded, agreed with, admired and liked for their opinions. Does that mean you have to stop having opinions? Of course not, but there are a few things we should address when it comes to opinions. Fact Vs Opinions First of all, what is an opinion and what is a fact? Is Pluto a planet regardless of what the scientific definition says? Unfortunately yes, Pluto is a dwarf planet. That is a scientific fact. The brontosaurus does not exist. Coffee is both good and bad for you. Facts are facts; opinions are opinions. Similarly, opinions can change too. Opinions Can Change Why is it so hard to have an opinion on the Internet? My theory is that it is written down: The problem with social media is that your past opinions can come back and haunt you. The thing is, whatever opinions, stances or views you subscribed to when you were 14 may not be the same as when you are People change, so do opinions. And while it is harder to hold verbal opinions against someone, an inked opinion is pretty hard to shake off. And no one is safe from this, not even celebrities. Is it fair to hold a status someone shared 5 years ago against them? If you do, eventually no one will dare give any opinions at all. Being entitled to an opinion does not automatically make the opinion right. If you want to fight to the death for your opinion, remember that you have to be accountable for how you deliver that opinion, and that there is still a possibility of you being proven wrong. Opinions Need Context Face it, in every argument there is someone who is probably wrong and the other person is therefore, by elimination and definition, right. Why in the world would arguments drag out so long then? Many arguments cannot be resolved because the people involved in the argument are basing their opinions on different contexts. Ask if breastfeeding automatically makes a woman a better mother and World War 3 commences. When discussing the natural goodness and bonding powers of the act of breastfeeding, yes it has its benefits that is good to the newborn. They all take shape in this bubble of conditions that we call context. Opinions Label You There are a lot of cliques, gangs and groups online: And like all great battles, there are plenty of passionate people on both sides of the war. When you have an opinion that aligns yourself to a group or faction, you run the risk of mistaking this sense of acceptance and belonging as who you are. You get reduced down to a label, when in fact you have a personality that is so much more complex and too complicated to be summarized by a single label such as feminist, hipster, fanboy, grammar nazi or housewife. You have your own set of opinions, formed by your life experiences, by the things you read, by the conversations you have, and you deserve to let that surface. Your Opinion Matters I attended a publishing seminar once by a renowned speaker from a visiting university. Share Your Opinion Have an opinion on something you feel passionately about? We look forward to many more years of remarkably serving your real estate needs. You exceeded every expectation I had when we first started this ordeal. You are a true professional and I was very fortunate to stumble upon you guys during my search. I will never miss an opportunity to send people your way in the future. From the very first phone call to signing on closing day, Ryan met and exceeded all of my expectations. I highly recommend Ryan Hukill. We at Real Talk Oklahoma are proud to call him our trusted advisor and friend. He is a great asset to your company. I originally reached out to Brian about 6 weeks ago after seeing one of his listing on line. Brian was very proactive in following up and setting us up with our customized list of homes great interactive tool by the way. He listens well and quickly got a feel for our personalities and what we were looking for in a home. Plus he has a good sense of humor- and my wife likes him which is no small feat. Our initial house hunting trip was somewhat spur of the moment and included about 14 houses we wanted to see. Brian was able to make all the arrangements to fit our schedule without much lead time. He was a good sounding board as we discussed pros and cons and gave us his honest opinion when asked. One thing I noticed as a sales professional myself for the last 17 years is that Brian seems to have mastered the art of being assertive without seeming to be assertive. Very beneficial as we needed to transition quickly since I am changing roles and locations within my company. He was available day and night to return calls and emails. I have recommended him to friends who plan to purchase in the near future. He really made our home search and buying experience a dream. His knowledge of what was available and the value of homes in our area made using his service a breeze. We would highly recommend him to any one in the market to buy or sell a home. As we were relocating from out-of-state, his constant communication and quick response time was greatly appreciated. Thanks, Ryan, for guiding us through the process and helping us find our perfect house! Ryan is extremely professional, knowledgeable and incredibly friendly. And in the next breath, I asked him if he would represent us when that time came for us to move. While there were other interested buyers, the market has been tough. Fate was on our side and the house was available when we received our orders to stay in Oklahoma City! He made recommendations on minor improvements and what clutter to clear to make our house the most presentable. Through all of that, he was able to sell our home in one day three if you count the negotiations! While relieved, I actually felt a little guilty because I knew three couples who all had their homes on the market for over three months. So, if you are looking for a true gentleman, who will provide you with expert guidance, with the utmost integrity, then Ryan Hukill is the realtor for you. He has a passion for providing exceptional service to his clients, and we will always be grateful. We met for coffee and a brief introduction. Two hours later we both had other places to be. Ryan is truly a real estate professional, and he operates his business out of authenticity, transparency and a lengthy track record of dependability. If you are thinking about purchasing or selling a home in the Edmond or OKC area, you should at least visit with Ryan. If you live in the Oklahoma City area, or are moving here, you should call them for help. Spent an hour last night walking us page by page through 27 pages of loan documents and explaining how an extra half or whole payment would effect the amortization schedule. He was more teacher and adviser than salesman, something we truly appreciate. Need a home loan? I sure wish that I had sought your services prior to my previous two Realtors as they each listed our house for over 8 months each. You listed it via techniques and methods that were of the facet that obtained results in a few weeks. The Agent to seller relationship was one of the best experiences that I have ever been associated with. You not only focused your efforts to sell my house but kept us informed more than I was expecting. In the short time that we have been working together, you not only earned my respect but I have obtained a great friend. We sincerely pray and wish you and your family the very best of wishes and hope you stay in touch. He is one of the few agents I have worked with that genuinely has my best interest in mind. I was and still am very pleased with the quality work you give to your clients. I still would completely recommend you to anyone in the Oklahoma market in a heart beat. The most important thing is that you have the common sense and know-how to sell a home. Thank you for all that you did to give us peace in our life at the time when we desperately needed it. His approach to comprehensive marketing of properties through the use of new media is phenomenal, which means faster results for you. I know putting up with us has not been easy: I have full confidence when referring him to my clients! My wife and I found them very professional, friendly, and accommodating. We very much appreciate the way they kept our well being in mind by checking, then rechecking all of the details of the transactions to make sure we were covered in all aspects of the sale and purchase. I highly recommend them to everyone. Thank you Ryan and Brooke! During the entire process, Ryan was always available, he was quick to return calls, and he always knew or found answers to our questions. Ryan does what he says he will do, and if we ever decide to move again, we will be giving him a call.
